Texto A

01	What could China do in a US trade war?
02
03	President Trump's backing for slapping tariffs on imports of washing machines and
04	solar panels will hit China and South Korea hardest.
05	And it has opened up the prospect of some retaliation - especially from Beijing.
06	The hardline Chinese publication Global Times says "nothing good" would come
07	out of a trade war with President Trump, and has warned that China could fight
80	back. There's lots at stake. The two countries did $578.6bn worth of trade in 2016.
09	And by the US government's own estimates that trade supports just under a million
10	American jobs.
11	So what could China do? Well here are a few options:
12	1) File complaints to the World Trade Organization: China says the US tariffs are
13	bad for global trade and has already said that it will work with other WTO members
14	to defend itself.
15	2) Limit US beef imports: Last May, the US and China signed a deal to allow,
16	amongst other things, the resumption of US beef exports to China after 14 years.
17	3) Tell Chinese customers not to buy American cars: China is the world's biggest
18	passenger car market. By 2022 it will contribute to over half of the world's car
19	growth.
20	4) Tell tourists to stop visiting the US: China is the world's leading outbound tourist
21	market, with more than 130 million Chinese people travelling around the world each
22	year - a number that just keeps rising. They spend something like $260bn
23	(£185.2bn) a year when they travel,
24	5) Sell some US bonds: China owns more than a $1tn of US debt. It has threatened
25	to sell US Treasuries before, and many have worried that this level of debt could
26	mean that Beijing has leverage over the US economy.

Regional development means wide-ranging, multi-level activities to promote wellbeing and prosperity in different regions. It is based on interaction between ministries, counties, municipalities and other operators. In regional development, the goals and measures of different counties and administrative branches are examined together both from national and regional perspectives. This examination covers both the measures and resources of regional development and the effects of policy-making (in different sectors) on regional development. The Government's regional development decision serves as a common regional development strategy for the duration of the term of government. The ministries are committed to implementing the coordinated regional development targets defined in the regional development decision based on the Government Programme. The regional development decision is prepared in cooperation between the ministries, regions and other partners. A central task of the authorities responsible for regional development is to create conditions for this cooperation and for the formation of a shared vision. The Ministry of Economic Affairs and Employment is responsible for regional development and its coordination. Regional Councils serve as regional development authorities in the counties. ELY Canters contribute to regional development by carrying out the central government's implementation and development tasks in the regions. The targets and programs of regional development and the responsibilities of the authorities have been determined in the Act on Regional Development and the Administration of Structural Funds (7/2014). The forthcoming regional government reform will impose changes on the planning, practices and operators'
